$800 Loot Is Taken From 2 3rd Floor Apartments In Daylight Robbery Here

Jewelry, Watches and Cash Belonging to Dr. and Mrs. Bruce N. Wolff and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Plank Are Stolen Monday Afternoon.

BOROUGH AND STATE POLICE START INVESTIGATION; DOOR FRAME FORCED

Third floor apartments of Dr. and Mrs. Bruce N. Wolff and Mr. and Mrs. Milton Plank in the A. B. Plank building, 24 Baltimore street, were looted of jewelry, watches and cash worth between $700 and $800 in a bold daylight robbery Monday afternoon between 2 and 5 o'clock. Both apartments were unoccupied during that interval.

The apartments had been completely ransacked with the exception of the kitchens where nothing had been disturbed. Bed and living rooms in both suites of rooms had been thoroughly searched and the valuables removed.

Door Frame Forced

Entrance was gained to the Plank apartment by forcing a sharp instrument under the stripping on the door frame and forcing the bolt of the night lock out of the catch. At the Wolff door force was apparently not necessary for it is believed the robber or robbers made use of a door key suspended from a nail high on the side of the door frame. After the entry the key was returned to its place.

Articles stolen from the Plank apartment included:

Cash amounting to $33, including two ten-dollar bills, a five and eight one's, and the bill fold which contained the cash and Mrs. Plank's automobile driver's license.

Two white gold diamond rings, the property of Mrs. Plank, worth $250.

A 32 calibre loaded nickel plated pistol and an indefinite number of cartridges. The pistol was worth about $10.

A set of silverware worth $75.

Old coins worth $8, a gold watch chain worth $1.50, shirt studs and other small articles of no great value.

Discovered at 5 p. m.

The loot removed from the Wolff apartment across the hall included:

An Elgin wrist watch belonging to Doctor Wolff worth $85. It was a key-wind watch and the robbers left the key behind, although it was in plain sight.

A $150 diamond solitaire ring from a case on top a dresser. Under the case was a $5 bill that was overlooked.

A $10 sapphire ring, a $5 gold piece and a $1 gold piece.

Five dollars in dimes, a watch chain and a small stilet worth several dollars and other small articles.

At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon Mrs. Wolff and Mrs. Plank left their apartments together and spent the afternoon swimming in a pool near Gettysburg. They returned together about 5 o'clock and Mrs. Plank quickly discovered that their apartment had been entered by the marks on the door. Entering, she found two bedrooms and the living room in complete disorder. Articles in the kitchen had been undisturbed and two cartons of cigarettes in that room were unopened.

Investigation Started

Officer Chester M. Spence, of the borough police, was summoned immediately, and with Corporal L. D. Gritman, of the local sub-station of the state police, made an investigation of the Plank robbery.

There were no marks on the Wolff apartment door and a hurried examination of the apartment by Mrs. Wolff did not disclose the robbery. It was not until after the police had left the Plank rooms that Mrs. Wolff found dresser and desk drawers had been ransacked and then carefully closed, leaving the rooms in order.

Police were called back to the (Continued on Page Two)

HEAD-ON AUTO CRASH INJURES FIVE MOTORISTS

Cars Collide at Crest Of Hill as One Passes Slow-Moving Truck.

OCCURS NEAR BONNEAUVILLE

A head-on automobile collision at Square Corners, three miles east of Bonneauville on the Gettysburg-Hanover road, about 10:45 o'clock this morning sent five persons to the Annie M. Warner hospital for treatment, four of them remaining as patients. No one is seriously injured.

The crash was investigated by Patrolman R. E. Mathers, of the local sub-station of the state highway patrol, who said that the accident occurred on a curve near the crest of a hill as Mervyn J. Sherrick, 45, Indiana, Pa., was completing a pass around a slow-moving stone truck. Sherrick was traveling toward Hanover.

A car driven by William Friesmuth, 26, Wheeling, West Virginia, approached from the opposite direction and the cars collided near the center of the highway.

All the occupants of both cars were injured and both cars were badly damaged. They were towed to the H and H machine shop here. Total damage, about equally divided between the two cars, was placed at $450.

Sherrick was treated at the hospital for chest and face injuries but was not admitted as a patient. His wife, Byrdell Sherrick, was admitted and is suffering from a laceration of the forehead and other painful cuts and bruises.

The three occupants of the Wheeling car are patients. Friesmuth received a fracture of the right arm and lacerations of the head. The other passengers in that car and their injuries follow: Miss Elizabeth Higgins, Wheeling, multiple lacerations of the scalp, fractures of bones in the left hand, injury to the left ankle and shock, and Mrs. J. V. Dickey, Wheeling, possible fracture of the left ankle and a deep laceration of the lower lip and mouth.

Friesmuth and his passengers were returning to Wheeling after vacationing at Atlantic City. The Sherricks were eastbound as they began their vacation period.

JURY CONSIDERS CASE AGAINST CCC ENROLLEE

George Molson Accused of Stealing 30 Suits of Clothes At Camp.

WEISHOAR TRIAL NOW IN PROGRESS

Molson was found guilty in a verdict read at 3:10 o'clock this afternoon.

Glenn Weishoar, Gettysburg, went on trial at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in Adams county court on a serious charge laid by O. E. Shultz, Hamiltonban township, involving a 17-year-old girl. The defense attorney is Raymond P. Topper, Esq.

Trial of the Weishoar case began after the case of George Molson colored, enrollee of a local CCC camp, charged with robbery by Joseph Flegler, Philadelphia, had gone to a jury for decision.

The Molson case occupied the entire morning session. The colored man was arrested in July on a charge of stealing more than 30 suits and parts of others while they were being displayed in a recreation hall at the camp by Flegler and an associate. Eugene V. Bulleit, Esq., was the defense attorney. The Molson jury retired at 2:20 o'clock this afternoon.

Harrisburger Not Guilty

The jury in the Molson case follows: Charles Stoner, Hamiltonban township; William E. Smith, Cone-wago township; John H. Deatrick, Biglerville; Lester Sowers, Liberty township; Charles Eyster, Cone-wago township; Harry Asper, Butler township; Paul W. Harner, Mount Joy township; Joseph H. Bucher, Littlestown; O. C. Livingston, Hamiltonban township; J. Edward Jenkins, Oxford township; John W. Bollinger, Cumberland township, and Levi Spangler, Straban township.

About 5:20 o'clock Monday afternoon a jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of W. B. Benedict, Harrisburg, charged with operating an automobile under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Benedict, who was defended by Eugene V. Bulleit, Esq., was arrested November 20, 1935, on the Harrisburg road, four miles north of here by Patrolman C. F. Remz, who was at that time stationed at Gettysburg.

Put On Probation 6 Weeks

The verdict of the jury placed the costs of the case on Benedict. Judge W. C. Sheely placed Benedict on probation for a period of six weeks, during which time he is to abstain from the use of intoxicating liquor. He may pay the costs of the case in three installments, the court ruled.

John W. Bollinger, Cumberland township, was chairman of the jury that included the following: John S. Weaver, McSherrytown; A. Elmer Rentzel, Franklin township; Paul W. Harner, Mount Joy township; Levi G. Spangler, Straban township; J. H. Bucher, Littlestown; O. C. Livingston, Hamiltonban township; Edward Redding, Straban township; Charles F. Grot, Cone-wago township; W. F. Redding, Cumberland township; G. W. Mehring, Straban township, and J. Edward Jenkins, Oxford township.

While the court waited to receive the verdict in the Benedict case selection was made of the Molson jury.

L. C. Gebhart, 20, on Way To Turn In Fire Alarm, Killed in 'Cycle Crash

Vehicle Bounds Ten Feet Into Air After It Leaves Curve and Strikes Telephone Pole in Bonneauville Monday Evening at 6:05 O'Clock.

BLAZING STRAW STACK THREATENED FARM BUILDINGS AT VICTIM'S HOME

Racing to summon aid to his father's farm where a blazing straw stack threatened buildings, Lawrence C. Gebhart, 20, Gettysburg R. 5, died of a crushed skull Monday evening at 6:05 o'clock when his motorcycle left the highway on the sharp curve at the west end of Bonneauville and crashed into a telephone pole. Death was instantaneous.

The accident occurred within a few hundred yards of his destination—the Bonneauville fire engine house.

Witnesses of the tragedy said they heard the roar of the motor of Gebhart's motorcycle as he approached the town, with the horn sounding, to arouse the citizens to answer the fire alarm. As he rounded the right-angle turn the motorcycle swung wide, left the highway on the outside of the curve about 100 feet from the point of the crash and went out of control on the narrow berm.

'Cycle Bounces Into Air

When the speeding 'cycle struck grass at the edge of a shallow ditch along the side of the road, it skidded, turning over on its left side as it struck the pole at full speed. The handlebar came into contact with the pole and the rider's head was dashed forward. Then the motorcycle bounded into the air eight or ten feet with its motor still roaring and the driver's limp form—probably lifeless at that time—remaining astride the machine. The 'cycle dropped back to the ground and spun about until the motor stopped in some unknown manner.

When Elmer Altland, Gettysburg R. 5, and Gervus Eck, near Bonneauville, who had witnessed the accident while unloading coal at the home of Frank Eck across the highway from the scene of the fatality, reached the Gebhart youth they found him dead close by his motorcycle, about 15 feet beyond the telephone pole.

A crowd quickly gathered and the victim was recognized as the son of Harry N. Gebhart, who resides about a half mile west of Bonneauville on the Gettysburg highway. Altland and Simon Kuhn, Bonneauville, started toward the Gebhart home to tell members of the family of the tragedy when, for the first time, they noticed the blazing straw stack close to the Gebhart barn and returned to Bonneauville to sound the alarm. A few minutes later a call was placed for the Gettysburg fire company. The Bonneauville company was the first to arrive on the scene and with the later assistance of the Gettysburg firemen succeeded in saving all the farm buildings and confining the flames to the straw stack.

Was Working at Cross Keys

The loss from the fire was estimated less than $100. Sergeant S. Sheaffer of the local substation of the highway patrol was summoned to the scene and conducted an investigation of the accident. The highway patrolman notified Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Gettysburg, Adams county coroner, who arrived at Bonneauville shortly after 7 o'clock. After a brief investigation, he announced the death as accidental and permitted the removal of the body by H. B. Bende and Son, Gettysburg undertakers.

Doctor Miller stated that the left side of the victim's skull had been crushed. Bones in the left side of his face were fractured and he had probably suffered a fracture of the neck. There will be no inquest.

Lawrence "Farmer" Gebhart had arrived home only a few minutes before the fire was discovered. He had been working on the state highway near Cross Keys during the day and had ridden to his home on the motorcycle that was used for the later ride. Placing his dinner bucket on the back porch Gebhart walked toward the barn where his father was busy with the evening chores and with preparations for a public sale which was planned for Saturday.

Sister Discovers Fire

Gebhart's older sister was in an orchard close to the house when she saw flames shooting from a small lean-to shed built against the southeast side of the straw stack, 20 feet from the south end of the barn. She shouted to her father who told Lawrence to go for help while he tried to extinguish the fire.

flames with buckets of water carried from a well at the home.

Gebhart mounted his cycle and raced toward the Bonneauville fire engine house, sounding his horn, as he rode. Knowing that a neighbor's telephone was out of order he went directly to the small town where the accident occurred.

The motorcycle was not badly damaged in the crash. The left headlight and the left handlebar were bent, but otherwise there was little damage.

When Bonneauville firemen arrived at the fire they found the flames spreading rapidly, being fanned by a light north breeze that served to keep smoke and sparks from floating toward the barn and the other buildings that stood nearby. The Bonneauville firemen drenched the south barn wall with chemicals until the Gettysburg apparatus arrived and 750 feet of hose were laid to Chicken creek, east of the buildings, and a stream of water poured over the threatened structures. The flames were confined to the stack.

Mr. Gebhart and other members of the family were at a loss to explain the origin of the blaze. Children were playing about the barn but none was in the vicinity of the spot where the fire started.

The deceased is survived by his father, Harry N. Gebhart, 55, with whom he resided in Mt. Pleasant township, and two brothers and a sister: Leo C. Gebhart, Gettysburg, R. 5 and Mrs. Joseph Krichen, and Roy A. Gebhart, at home. Lawrence was unmarried. His mother, the former Mamie Storm, died 13 years ago.

He was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic church, Bonneauville, and of the Holy Name society of the church.

He had formerly been employed at a shoe factory at Littlestown but recently had been working as a laborer for the state department of highways.

He was a member of the Gettysburg aerie of the Fraternal order of Eagles and of the Eagles' home association of Hanover.

His paternal grandmother, Mrs. Christian Gebhart, is among the survivors.

Funeral services from the Gebhart home Thursday morning at 8:30 o'clock with requiem high mass in St. Joseph's Catholic church, Bonneauville, at 9 o'clock with the Rev. Fr. Leo J. Krichen, rector, officiating. Interment in the church cemetery.

Friends may call Wednesday evening at the Gebhart home.

The telephone pole that young Gebhart struck had been placed there within the past year. A pole standing on the same spot was snapped off by an automobile early the morning of November 6, 1935, by an automobile in which Eugene Collins, Littlestown R. D., was fatally injured.

Gov. Landon Urges Broad Education

Asserts Youth Must Be Given Background of Our Heritage and Tradition.

Chautauqua, N. Y., Aug. 25 (AP)—Gov. Alf M. Landon said Monday night "widespread use of the machinery of federal government to maintain the present administration in power" represented a "danger" to American education.

Adding that "today, both at home and abroad, men are striving for power through leadership of the mob," the presidential nominee told an audience at the birthplace of the Chautauqua movement.

"Because of this, I believe that our educators should make a more than normal effort to see that our youth is given a background of our heritage and tradition—a fundamental understanding of the form and philosophy of our government. "If this is done, we need have no fear of allowing our youth to study any and all systems of government to which their curiosity leads them. Only through ignorance of bigotry can we be destroyed."

The Republican candidate made his first major address in President Roosevelt's home state on the shores of Lake Chautauqua where he spent vacations as a youth and met his first wife. At this center of the well-known educational movement, he discussed what he termed "the dangers that face free education today."

Townsend Funds Spent for Clubs

Pension Plan Founder Says Local Groups Cost More Than $1,000,000.

Cleveland, Aug. 25 (AP).—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, advocate of $200-a-month pensions for the aged, testified in a deposition hearing Monday in connection with the receivership suit against his organization that more than a million dollars has been spent in organizing Townsend clubs in the United States.

Ben F. Sacharow, counsel for the Rev. Alfred J. Wright, ousted director and plaintiff in the suit, stated that his investigation of the Townsend organization books in Chicago showed a balance of $25,915. Sacharow claimed that $1,250,000 had been collected since the inception of the movement in 1934.

"Would you tell us what happened to that money?" Sacharow asked the pension leader.

"That's a sensible question," Dr. Townsend said. "I'll be glad to answer. We organized 9,000 separate clubs throughout the United States with that money and have accomplished more than has ever been done with a like amount. We're proud of that record."

"Did you ever get any legislation through congress?" Sacharow asked.

"We hardly expected to do so," Townsend answered. "It takes time. We believe we're prepared to get this legislation through in a very brief time."

MADRID ADMITS REBELS BOMBED CITY AIRDROME

But Government Reports Little Damage Was Inflicted by Planes.

Madrid, Aug. 25 (AP).—An official government bulletin late Monday admitted Spanish rebel airplanes had bombed Getafe airdrome, on the outskirts of Madrid, early Sunday.

The Bulletin said, however, that the damage was slight.

A squadron of government planes pursued the rebel flyers, who sped back to Seville after dropping several bombs.

Authorities also said 400 rebels had been burned alive when Simancas barracks at Gijon were fired Saturday.

All Rebels Captured Executed

They said rebel troops, headed by Moors, had attempted to break through government forces surrounding Cordoba, in the south, but had been forced back. The loyalists reported they had summarily executed all Moors and rebel legionnaires captured and had seized large quantities of guns and ammunition.

Concern in Capital

The government also announced rebel troops, attempting to force their way through government lines besieging the eastern city of Zaragoza, were driven off in disorder under heavy artillery and machine-gun fire.

The announcement stated the rebel casualties were heavy and that numerous prisoners and several field pieces had been captured by the government troops.

Rebel forces, meanwhile, were said to have traveled by train from Seville to Badajoz and to Burgos. This apparent facility of the rebel forces in moving about the war-torn country was causing concern among both officials and civilians at Madrid.

The government forces, it was said, did not have enough fighting men to spare from the more direct defense of Madrid who could be sent against the rebel forces reported pushing forward from the western sections.

From directly south of Madrid rebel forces of the southern army were driving steadily forward toward Toledo in a determined attempt to reach their comrades last reported holding out in the besieged Alcazar garrison in Toledo against government forces theoretically holding the city.

Madrid Monday night was a city at war.

Banks, offices, shops, thoroughfares and by-paths were guarded by government militia as wholesale arrests of those believed to be rebel supporters continued.

Well-informed sources told of nightly killings of fascists condemned by perfunctory secret tribunals composed largely of anarchists.

The populace, despite the ominous situation expressed by government officials, and the patrols of omnipresent militiamen, went to the movies and loafed about in cafes. Idlers thronged the streets and conveyances were crowded.

apartment house to investigate the second entry.

Mrs. A. B. Plank and Mrs. William L. Meals told officers that they had been at home all afternoon in their apartments on the second floor of the building, directly beneath the looted rooms, and had heard nothing that aroused their suspicions.

The officers have not been able to learn that anyone was seen in the vicinity during the afternoon under circumstances that would arouse suspicion.

Before the two young women left for the swimming trip at 2 o'clock they had drawn the shades on the windows at the front of the apartments. The intruders did not switch on the electric lights but made their way about with safety matches. A number of the charred match sticks were found in both apartments.

In both instances the loot was removed from tops and drawers of desks and dressers.

JULY CORN PRICE BOOST

Ames, Iowa (AP).—Iowa State college agriculture economists say that the July boost in corn prices was one of the sharpest on record, even sharper than during July of 1934, drought year.

"The price of oats, barley, wheat and other corn substitutes will determine in large measure in the next few months, however, what corn can sell for," they said. "Already some western feeders are reported feeding wheat in place of corn."

CHURCH GROUP COOKS

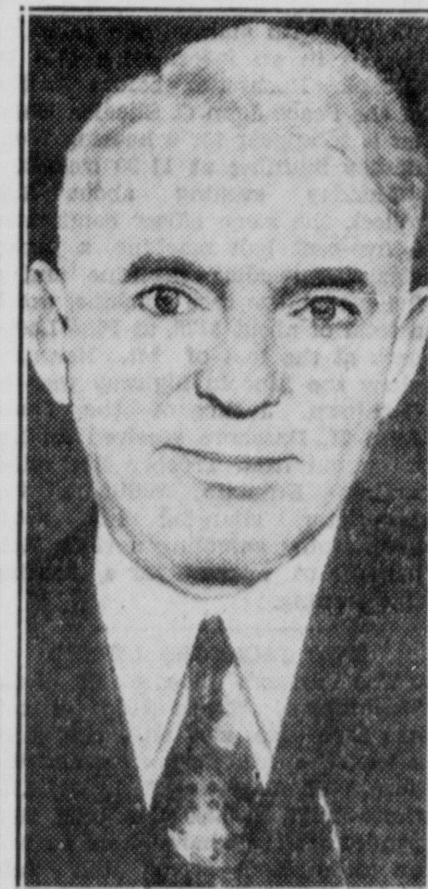

TO EARN MORE MONEY

Lehigh, Iowa (AP).—The ladies' aid society of the Christian church here found a new way of making money—feeding threshing crews in the church basement.

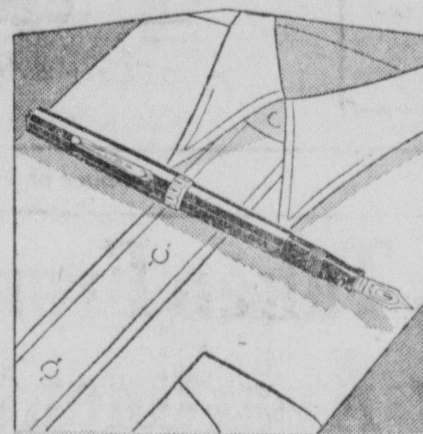

In two weeks they served dinner to 22 different crews, averaging as high as three cents totaling 45 men, some days.

Net result—$91.80 in the society's treasury.

He had been ordered by Governor Lehman to defend the charges at a public hearing Aug. 26. (Associated Press Photo)

THE WORLD WITH A FENCE

A New Novel by Marian Sims

SYNOPSIS: Carol Torrance has a job in Atlanta. She has a considerable employer by name Blake Thornton, and she has some amusing friends. She wanted just this, and she should be happy. The only trouble is that she cannot disregard the obvious fact that Blake and his wife are not happy. Irma Thornton spends her summers in the mountain, and her winters in Florida. Blake has spent the last week-end with Irma—and he certainly did not look to Carol like a man who expected to enjoy himself when he left.

Chapter 28

BOSS FOR DINNER

Blake dropped several sheets of paper on Carol's desk.

"The Acme Cleaners have just installed the Martax equipment, and they want a quarter-page ad about it. Here's the technical information; you'll know how much of it a customer would be interested in."

She nodded without speaking, and began to study the information. The hands of her watch said half-past three; she would just about have time to finish this afternoon. She took it to him at five o'clock, and waited while he read it. Probably, she thought without resentment, he wouldn't like it at all.

He read it through and chuckled. "You do take down your back hair with 'em, don't you? He added carefully:

"If you don't mind waiting ten minutes I'll drive you home."

She said frankly: "I'd wait an hour to avoid that street car."

"It must be awful. Tell the other girls I'll take them too; they're off my beat, but they probably feel the same way."

The four of them talked very little during the drive to West End. Within the office they were at ease, bound by a common interest. Outside its walls, and in Blake's presence, they were strangers to each other, and their talk was shouted across a gulf of different backgrounds. And at their own doorways Freddie and Laura thanked him profusely, and were engulfed by their own homes.

When they were alone Carol said abruptly: "Blake, it's perfectly insane for you to work all summer. It's not even good business, because you're bound to pay for it sooner or later. Why on earth don't you go to Rockbrook for at least a week or ten days?"

He turned his head and smiled briefly at her. "Have you ever seen Rockbrook?"

"No, but I've seen several of its cousins. Even if it bores you, you ought to have several days of rest. Bored people usually get fat, don't they? 'Fat and bored'; they go together like ham and eggs."

"Maybe. I'd rather be thin."

"Then go somewhere else."

"I can't afford to go anywhere, child."

"Rot. You can't afford not to."

"Well, I'm not going to, so you might as well save your thoughtfulness for a wortlier object. Not," he added softly, after several seconds, "that I'm not flattered as the devil to have it."

She sighed, and gave him up. For the rest of the way they sat wrapped in their own thoughts.

At the Sherwood she faced him impulsively, moved by the loneliness that lay so often behind his eyes. "Why don't you come in and have dinner with me?"

He shook his head. "Let you cook for me on a night like this? You're a peach to suggest it, but I wouldn't think of it." He added recklessly: "Suppose I come back in an hour and get you to have dinner with me."

"No. I've done that twice already. I've got food in the refrigerator that has to be fixed, and it's no more trouble to fix it for two. Maybe eating too many restaurant meals is what's dragging you down."

She had seen wistfulness flicker for an instant across his face, and she knew he wanted to come. And so she insisted. "Come on, please."

He wavered. "Oh, hell. I can resist anything but temptation. You brought it on yourself."

"I mean to. Park your car and come on."

"No. I'll go home and have a shower, and give you a chance to do likewise. I'll be back in thirty or forty minutes and set the table."

Suddenly he looked years younger, and for the first time she despised Irma Thornton. Heretofore Irma had been a shadowy subject for speculation, but a man who could be pleased with so little had obviously been given nothing. She nodded.

"That's better still. Come back whenever you're ready."

She bathed and put on a green and white voile dress that had seen better days, and then went into the kitchen to take an inventory. There was a fat letter from Jill, but she wanted to read it unhurriedly, so she put it aside.

Sweetbreads: fortunately she had ordered enough for two days. Romaine and endive for a salad. A fresh loaf of French bread. Potatoes to be boiled and then baked for a few minutes in the oven. Sliced raw carrots had lain all day in ice-water—the lucky devil!

Nothing for dessert, but Camembert and hard crackers were better than desert anyhow.

Blake came back, in a spotless linen suit. He looked around her apartment with quick approval.

"You've got the touch, haven't you? Now where's the silver and what-not?"

"In the kitchen cabinet." It would have been easier to do it herself, but apparently he enjoyed the illusion of usefulness. "But you can't work unless you take off that gorgeous coat. I won't stand for such ceceration."

He grinned and obeyed. "Now that you've seen it, I don't care if I do." He pointed to the gate-legged table. "Do we eat on that?"

"No. I hate the things; there's never any place for your knees. Put up that card table—I swear it's dependable—and move it where we can get a breeze from the fan."

He went back to the kitchen and left him to fend contentedly for himself.

"Say," he demanded from the doorway, "why not move the fan in the kitchen while you're working?"

"Because there is a trick ventilator." She began on the cream sauce.

He leaned against the kitchen door. "What next?"

"Nothing. Sit in that chair by the fan and read the evening paper. It's on the table."

"Why can't I talk to you?"

"Because I've got a one-track mind. I'd put ice in the sweetbreads instead of the coffee."

He went back and opened the paper, but the headlines were meaningless. He was too lazily content to read of the heat wave and the European situation.

Killed Daughter as "Kindness," Poverty-Stricken Mother Says

"Was Tired of Living Like Animal and Raising Her That Way," Seattle Woman Explains Ax Slaying Of Girl Who "Fussed" for Pretty Clothes.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Ester Hilda Olson, impoverished young mother, was charged with murder Monday night after a deputy sheriff said she confessed the ax slaying of her daughter who "fussed" because she could not have "pretty clothes, a nice home and good food."

Mutilated by an ax and a bread knife, the body of 16-year-old Rose Olson was found today buried in a shallow grave near the cottage she and her mother occupied.

"I thought I was doing Rose a kindness by killing her," O. K. Bodia, chief criminal deputy sheriff, quoted the 33-year-old Mrs. Olson as saying. "I was tired of living like an animal and raising her that way."

A brother of the woman, Ted R. Olson, said an argument over a boy friend also had preceded the girl's disappearance Thursday night. Deputy coroners said the girl apparently was killed in her bed and the body dragged or carried to the burial site.

The confession, as announced by Bodia, said last Thursday was the daughter's birthday and that the girl attended a party that night.

"After she had gone to bed, I ate a grapefruit with a lot of sugar on it, and I got a funny feeling and funny ideas came into my head," the confession said. "Then I grabbed the ax and hit her on the head. I took the butcher knife and cut her throat."

"She was always fussing around here," Mrs. Olson, also known as Mrs. Clark, admitted she never had been married legally to Rose's father, Bodia said.

"I've been on relief, getting $10 a month, for a year and a half. What chance did Rose have to be anybody, or have anything?" Bodia quoted the mother as saying.

Agent Who Chased Capone To Be Teacher of Police

Bloomington, Ind. (AP)—One of the federal agents who helped clean up Al Capone's gang in Chicago, Lieutenant Dan L. Kookan, now of the Indiana State Police, will turn his talents to the teaching of policemen when the new four-year training course of Indiana University opens in September.

As supervising lieutenant of the state police force, Lieutenant Kookan has been assigned to direct the study of scientific methods, police tactics, general police administration, and criminal investigation. He has had considerable experience in the work as head of the state police school which he organized and headed and which is being abandoned in favor of the new college course.

Slight of stature and mild of manner—the antithesis of the stage and movie presentation of policemen—Lieutenant Kookan believes the logical selection of a trained, educated police personnel is the answer to the crime problem of the United States. He believes college men of character and intelligence can be trained to become the best policemen in the world.

He was in the coast artillery from 1908-1911, then for six years was timber cruiser, guide and trapper in the Canadian northwest. He served as first lieutenant with the 369th infantry, seeing heavy service in the Vosges and Argonne sectors during the World war.

Returning from army service Lieutenant Kookan resigned from service of the treasury department, later transferring to the department of justice as a special agent assigned to the Chicago division. In 1930 he resigned to become assistant director of the Secret Six, famed crime-fighting body organized by the Chicago Association of Commerce.

With Capone safely behind bars, Lieutenant Kookan resigned from the Secret Six to become superintendent of public welfare in Omaha. He returned to Indiana from that post in 1934 to become supervising lieutenant of the Indiana State Police.

When the old court house was

It is not generally thought to be a desirable thing to have the "devil" think kindly of a man, but that is just the fix W. W. Witherow, of Cumberland township, has got himself into. Our "devil" thinks Mr.
Witherow about the cleverest man he has come across for some time, and all because of the courtesies shown to the "Star and Sentinel" employees on Friday last, while on a fishing excursion to his dam.
The "devil" and his aids request us to return their thanks to Mr.
Witherow for his generous attentions.

THE BLEAK SIDE OF CHARITY

They'll feed you when you're hungry and they'll clothe you when you're cold.

As any tramp can always testify;
They'll keep you in the Poor House when you're broken down and old.

And the medics will dissect you when you die.

They'll look at you in pity when you're begging at the door.

But they'll wonder if your money goes for beer.

And the moment you've departed they will think of you no more.

As a beggar you will come and disappear.

If you stand upon the highway you can always thumb a ride.
For some generous soul is bound to come along;

But the driver wouldn't let you have his daughter for a bride.
You would merely be another chap gone wrong.

If he thought that you were hungry he would gladly buy your meal.

Just because it seems the decent thing to do.

But although that touch of pity he is willing to reveal He would never want to make a friend of you.

Oh, my boy, there's more to living than the needed food and dress.

There is much that charity cannot bestow.

For a man must earn by toiling all he's eager to possess.

And struggle for the joys he wants to know.

He must fill some useful station and by labor pay his way
And maintain his self-respect at any cost.

For once he turns to begging, though he's fed from day to day.

To everything but pity he'll be lost.

'Figure Experts'

Turn to Sports
Of Own Devising

Princeton, N. J. (AP)—Princeton university mathematicians have evolved several games of their own.
Although very popular in professorial circles here, the games probably never will attain universal appeal.

The colleagues of Professor Albert Einstein found ordinary divisions uninteresting. Hence they turned to games that appeal to the mind steeped in the complexities of

Among the first products of mathematical ingenuity was chess in three dimensions. The ordinary board with 64 squares was supplanted with a system of eight boards superimposed to form a cube through which chessmen pass according to their regularly assigned moves. The added dimension prolongs a contest to five hours.

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

KEEP CHALLENGING YOURSELF

MEN become great and useful through will and vision. Lack of a desire to grow or to improve stagnates every faculty that a man owns.

Keep challenging yourself! The moment that you become satisfied with yourself or with your work, that moment you begin to slip backwards.
Challenge your thoughts, your actions, and everything that you achieve. Are you getting the most out of your abilities? How about the untried forces within you? No one ever knows the extent of his abilities or his possibilities until they are put to the test.

Upon finishing college I was undecided as to where to go. A friend's remark that "a man who can win anywhere, can win in the city," decided for me. I went to the city, and for 30 years I have lived there. Success and usefulness, however, are just as important in the small town or upon the farm. It's where you decide that you want to go, and what you decide that you want to do that is the important thing to consider.

Once the decision is made, as to one's life work, it should be entered upon with enthusiasm and will to make the most of all one has. By challenging each step, each thought, each action, defects are noted, errors are corrected, and growth becomes steady and regular.

The development of this inner life of ours is the most important task that we have to achieve. Not the mere making of money. Not the attainment of fame or station, nor of that fleeting thing called acclaim. We must become content within ourselves. We must satisfy that hunger of the heart. We must become our own best friend. By challenging the adverse forces that strive to push us from our line of purpose, we build a character!

Desire is the cornerstone of achievement. But, without will or purpose, even desire remains dormant. Keep challenging yourself! You can rout every pigmy of your nature if you will but decide to do so!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: Heart to Heart.

What Governors Think of 1938 Reunion Here

No. 5

Utah was but a young territory when civil strife tore the nation. Its geographical position made it important and steps taken by the national government to protect the alignment of communication between California and Washington had important bearing on the history of this state.

Many of our citizens are descendants of veterans of that historic conflict who came west after the war. Here the blue and the gray were united in the common purpose of establishing in the wilderness a civilization that should benefit their posterity and the entire nation. Some few, very few, of the veterans survive.

We rejoice at the spirit of harmony which makes possible such a celebration as that planned at Gettysburg on the 75th anniversary of that great battle.

Governor of Utah.

FALL GLOVES TAKE TONES OF LEAVES

Paris (AP)—Colored gloves in autumn leaf tones came to town with the fall fashion displays shown in the salons of leading Paris designers.

Molyneux showed "brand new" glace kid designs made for him by Chanut with his new autumn town clothes. They were slip-on styles with turn down cuffs, their only trimming being a big kid-covered button. Not even on the backs where triple stitchings usually play around, was there a single note of decoration.

A number of colored suedes were also shown. Those, too, had plain backs but were often made without cuffs, the top merely rolled and ever-stitched by hand the way handkerchief hems are done.

Maple Shoes, Too
Trees, leaves and moss inspired the colors for the gloves. Oak was the name for a light tan—almost a yellow. Cedar, elm and chestnut provided various browns and maple furnished the glowing red of the turned maple leaf in autumn.

The maple leaf shade was also seen in new shoes designed for early fall appearances. A spectator sports model in this soft red is made of a box calf, cut high in front and strap fastened with a cold buckle at the side. The perforated trimming is underlaid with beige kid.

Enzel designed for Maagy Rouff to display with fall afternoon clothes a shoe in steel grey glace kid softened with pearl or nacre finish.
This is a high heeled model made with a number of narrow straps giving a good deal of openwork treatment. Another of her shoes is an afternoon pump in black antelope with a curlicue motif across the front made of three tiny scalloped bands of patent leather.

Boots Are Good

Some new evening sandals in gold kid have braids of the kid for strap trimming which is a newer note than the plain flat strap. A low-heeled evening sandal combines gold kid with bronze in striking effect.

Boots, too, appear in the fall fashion picture—the kind that come above the ankle for several inches and usually lace over a tall tongue.

One of the news ones combines black patent leather with a black chaved fur, suggesting Russian influence.

LONG WINNING STREAK

Detroit (AP)—Bill Colone, a left-hander with the Wolverine Tool club team in Class C of the Detroit baseball federation, has been pitching on the sandlots for three years but has never been beaten. He won 11 games in 1934, five during the 1935 season, and when last heard from, had chalked up four wins this summer. His record is unparalleled here.

"The Green Pastures" Biblical Drama, Will Be Shown at Majestic

"The Green Pastures," pictured by Warner Bros. from Marc Connelly's Pulitzer prize play, comes to the Majestic theatre Wednesday and Thursday.

The picture, which ran for five years as a stage play, is said to be one of the most inspiring spectacles that has ever been screened.

The story, representing the primitive conception of the Bible and its characters, is filled with humor, although presented with a tender reverence.

The characterizations of Biblical folk and the scenic effects are aided by the singing of spirituals by the Hall Johnson choir. There are 25 of these spirituals altogether, some a faint, haunting background with the singers unseen, and others in full voice with the sixty members of the choir on the set.

There is a cast with 111 speaking parts and nearly 1,000 other players. Thirty of the actors were taken from the stage production while the others were recruited from New York and Los Angeles.

Rex Ingram, who has the leading role, takes the place of Richard Berry Harrison, who died after playing the part for five years on the stage.

DOG RUNS THROUGH FIRE TO WARN 2 MEN OF PERIL

Downieville, Cal., Aug. 25 (AP).—A dog ran 900 feet through a fire and smoke-filled tunnel Monday and attracted two miners to the entrance, where flames which soon would have trapped them were raging.

The miners, Joseph Stark and his son, Herman, left a fire in the stove in their quarters in the mine mill before they entered the tunnel. The stove pipe became hot and ignited dry timbers.

The dog ran through the blaze into the tunnel and barked until it attracted the two men.

ST. LOUIS TOO HOT EVEN FOR A CAMEL

St. Louis, Aug. 25 (AP).—The heat here, moving toward 100 degrees for the thirteenth consecutive day, proved too much Monday even for a camel, the animal used as a beast of burden on the blazing deserts of Africa and Asia.

A two-humped camel, owned by a circus (Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey), collapsed from heat exhaustion as the circus train left for Springfield, Missouri. The humane society took the animal in charge.

Pulls Cars Out of Ditch; Is Robbed

Taneytown Resident Relieved of Cash, Check and Keys After Being "Good Samaritan."

Robert C. Simmons, Taneytown, essayed the "Good Samaritan" role early Sunday morning and came out of it minus $23 in cash, a check in the amount of $17 and the keys to his automobile, he reported to the state police sub-station west of Frederick.

Simmons was proceeding to Taneytown from Washington about 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning when he saw an automobile apparently stranded in a ditch along the side of the road. The driver of the car waved him down and asked Simmons to pull the automobile out of the gully. The Taneytown man quickly assented and after some difficulty the machine was hauled onto the road.

Then, Simmons reported to state police, the stranger held him up, apparently at the point of a pistol, and relieved him of $23 in cash, a check in the amount of $17 on the First National Bank of York, and the keys to his automobile. Leaving Simmons standing along the road beside his machine, the stranger hopped in his own car and left. The robbery occurred about twelve miles from Frederick.

Simmons walked to the nearest garage, according to the report, and had another key to his automobile made. Then he hurried to the state police station near Frederick and made a search for the car, but had not located it Monday.

Chamberlain, Bride Completing Plans for Flight to Europe

By WILLIAM BORING
Atlanta, Ga. (AP). — Clarence Chamberlain and his bride of less than two months plan a transatlantic flight—through the stratosphere.

They will climb into his two-seated Lockheed monoplane at St. Johns, Newfoundland, some time in the next two months and take off for one of three points—Land's End, England, London or Paris.

A flier who graduated from the ranks of transport hostesses, Mrs. Chamberlain says she will do the "backseat" piloting on the ceiling hop.

She is the former Louise Ashby, daughter of State Senator George Ashby of Maine.

May Make History
Of the proposed flight, Chamberlain says:

"It will be only a part of our honeymoon."

But he added he expects to prove the era of stratosphere flying is near due to the "remarkable advances in the science of aviation engineering."

If the Chamberlains are successful in their flight they will be making aviation history.

Chamberlain says man never has attempted a solely stratosphere hop across a large body of water.

The failure on the part of the late Wiley Post to reach his goal in stratosphere flying—Post was forced down short of his destination on each of his transcontinental hops after flying hundreds of miles through the stratosphere—doesn't faze the veteran flier.

Nor does it bother his wife.

"I am so thrilled over the flight I can hardly wait," says blonde Mrs. Chamberlain.

Her husband says equipment for stratosphere flying has been so perfected at this time that no trouble should be encountered.

"Clouds in the summer season," he says, "lie below the 30,000-foot altitude level. In the winter season they're below 25,000 feet. By flying 35,000 feet we shall miss all clouds have the advantage of good tail winds prevalent at that altitude and experience a minimum of resistance."

A 1,200 horsepower, supercharged motor will send the Chamberlains' ship, "Miss Stratosphere," zooming through the ether at a 400 to 500 mile-an-hour clip, Chamberlain says, the great speed being made possible by stratosphere flying.

15 Hours To Paris
Equipped with all improved devices for safe flying "Miss Stratosphere" has retractable landing gear make possible forced landings in water or on land. The ship has a wingspread of 43 feet and is trimmed in yellow and black. She has a gasoline storage capacity of 600 gallons.

Chamberlain says one of the purposes of the flight is to pave the way for "shorter flying time flights" across the Atlantic.

"If we make the 1,850-mile hop from Newfoundland to Land's End," he says, "we expect to complete the journey in from five to six hours. A London or Paris hop would require 10 to 15 hours."

Regarding the speed angle, Mrs. Chamberlain explains:

"That's one reason I don't mind the trip. We will make it in such a short time, I won't have time to get scared. But I am never scared flying with Clarence. He knows the mechanics of aviation as well as being the pilot he is, you know."

Financed By Passengers
More than 50,000 Americans will finance the stratosphere flight.

They represent passengers the Chamberlains and their associate pilot, Jack Wall, of Eastman, Georgia, have taken for air rides at one dollar apiece.

The Chamberlains are barnstorming on their honeymoon to obtain money to finance the flight. They are flying Curtis Cendor ships that weigh nine and one-half tons and have seats for 27 and 32 passengers, respectively.

Mrs. Chamberlain is advance agent, arriving ahead of her flying hubby and his co-pilot.

"I wasn't getting along so well with this barnstorming business until I married her," said Chamberlain. "She's a real business manager."

Moreover she doesn't mind getting all mused up helping her husband when he is working on his ships.

such armor the ships must be big and sturdy. Vessels of 35,000 tons, officers say, are of the size—and therefore of the weight—to meet the American idea of an efficient battleship.

The biggest American battleships at the present time are the New Mexico and Idaho (33,400 tons).

Japanese Plans
The British navy's Hood—a battle-cruiser—boasts 42,100 tons, while nine of the British battleships proper are 31,000 tons and over.

The British have announced that immediately after expiration of existing treaties on January 1, they will begin construction of two new 35,000 ton battleships.

The Japanese navy's prides—Mutsu and Nagato—are of 32,720 tons, while their 7 other battleships are in the 29,000-ton category.

Japan's plans to build four new ships—rumored to range from 40,000 to 50,000 tons—are expected to be announced officially after January 1.

Washington Highlights

By PRESTON GROVER

Washington — In North Dakota Senator Nye is much concerned about the drought, but very likely certain developments are causing him to devote many hours also to planning a renewed crusade for government ownership of the munitions industry and an attack on the growing cost of national defense.

In the last days of the past congress, Nye had hard cards to play, but two factors now have presented themselves which he may look upon as useful acres. One is the decision of the Blum government in France to nationalize the munitions industry there. The other is the expectation this administration will build two new battleships at an estimated cost of $50,000,000 each.

Wilson Charge A Boomerang
The munitions committee investigation of the arms and shipbuilding industry, headed by Nye, was a sensation for more than a year. Last spring it went into semi-eclipse when the North Dakotan drew down upon it the wrath of Senator Glass of Virginia for saying Presdent Wilson "falsified" in testimony at a senate on world war treaties.

But even with its light almost snuffed out by the opposition engendered by the Wilson affair, the committee slogged along through the spring and published results of a study by two departmental engineers (not army or navy) in which it was estimated that for $47,000,000 the government could make itself independent of private munitions manufacturers, shipbuilders and airplane makers.

Battleships vs. Resettlement
On the strength of this estimate the munitions committee came out late in the session favoring partial nationalization, omitting previous suggestions for the government to set up its own airplane plant.

To Senator Nye the French example might appear particularly apt. Its huge Schneider-Creusot munitions plant repeatedly has been held aloft by the committee as an instance of an armament maker assertedly free to tantalize rival nations into heavy purchases in the belief that each was arming against the other.

As to the $100,000,000 worth of battleships, even before he left Washington after adjournment Senator Nye was preparing to ask the country, in a series of speeches, to consider how many resettlement projects such a sum would build.

Hollywood Novice Tells Veterans About Pictures, And They Like It

By ROBBIN COONS
Hollywood. — Tenderfeet in the movies are supposed to keep quiet and do as they're told. But Frances Farmer has ideas and doesn't see why she shouldn't express them. She does express them, and what's more: Howard Hawks, a director whose pictures long have given proof that he knows his business, has accepted several of them.

He says he thinks she is one of the most intelligent girls he has directed. When they're in the midst of a rehearsal and Frances thinks of a gesture or bit of "business" that might improve her characterization, she will out with it; not impudently, just inquiringly. And Hawks likes this. If he doesn't approve the idea, he will tell her why. But often he approves.

Miss Farmer is making her fourth picture—her first role of any real importance to her, she says. Romancing with Bing Crosby in "Rhythm on the Range" merely was an ingenue's assignment, in her valuation, but the role of Lotta in "Come and Get It" is a chance to act. At 21 she is intensely serious in her ambition.

Skipped The Hard Knocks
She is serious about pictures, too, although her ultimate ambition is the stage. She wishes more pictures would realize their potentialities, utilize the screen medium for worthwhile ends.

"Too often pictures do things that are meant to entertain—and don't," she says. "It's like a really good writer doing pulp stories."

Pretty, with uncommon poise to match, Frances Farmer won an essay contest in her home town, Seattle, Washington, which gave her a trip to Moscow. She saw Europe and met Dr. George Gladstone, who introduced her to a theatrical producer, who took her to picture scouts, who brought her to Hollywood with a contract. She skipped all the usual hard knocks of a beginner in pictures, for after two lesser roles she drew a lead.

She Also Writes Poetry
"I don't think I missed anything, though," she says. "I don't believe discouragement is helpful. But even so, I've had my share of it."

Clothes are not among her weaknesses, although she dresses as smartly as the next one. For rehearsals she prefers the comfort of a rough sweater, slacks—and tennis shoes. Omar Kiam, the designer, said of her that "draping her with fancy clothes is like overlighting a cathedral." She has a quality that calls for simplicity to do it justice, he says.

Not long after coming to Hollywood Miss Farmer married Leif Erikson, a young contract player on her home lot, who shares her interest in tennis, golf and their boat. They like to "get away from Hollywood" even though they live there.

She writes poetry, some of which has been published, but her principal desire still is to make the grade as an actress. Hollywood thinks she will.

U. S. Figures to Last Ounce In New 35,000-Ton Warships

By LLOYD LEHRBAS
Washington (AP).—Did you ever try to weigh a battleship?

The one known fact concerning the two battleships to be built by the United States navy, beginning soon after January 1, is that they will be of precisely 35,000 tons displacement.

That tonnage figure means, navy officers explain, that when the battleship is launched and placed in commission, loaded down with all the mechanical gadgets a modern fighting ship must have, it will displace the equivalent of 35,000 tons of water, and also weigh that number of tons of 2,240 pounds each.

Count All Weights
The steel framework and plates, engines, boilers, armor, guns, wires, electric lights, kitchen equipment—everything that goes into the manufacture of a battleship—is weighed, or its weight known, while the warship of the future is still nothing more than a sketch or a blueprint.

The standard displacement of 35,000 tons—permitted by the London naval pact—includes everything except extra water for the boilers and fuel.

Battleship weight is now such a fine science, officers add, that the number of officers and crew to be carried is set in advance and 1,000 pounds each estimated for every man's weight, clothes, baggage, and his proportion of food and water carried.

So precise is that weighing-in, the navy's experts declared, that if it were possible to hoist the completed battleship on a gigantic scale it would balance the pointer at 35,000 tons.

Why 35,000 tons?

The United States has no big naval bases scattered around the world—as Great Britain and other nations have—and it would therefore be impossible for an American battleship to put into port for fuel, water, food or other supplies in an emergency.

To overcome that handicap the American navy adopted the rule long ago to build its battleships so that they would be, as far as possible, self-sustaining.

Battleships are also "the backbone of the fleet" and must be capable of standing up against the warships of any other nation in an emergency. Other nations have battleships with 16-inch guns that hurl gigantic shells 20 miles or more, and an American battleship must, therefore, carry armor of a thickness to protect it against enemy shells of that calibre.

League Play-Off Starts Thursday

The first of a three-game series to decide the championship of the community church baseball league will be played on the playground diamond Thursday afternoon at 5:45 o'clock between the Methodists and the Garagemen.

A stiff struggle is anticipated when the teams tangle due to the bitter feeling between the team members. The Methodists copied the first half championship while the Garagemen displayed plenty of punch in walking away with the second half honors.
